Non-Cross-listed Courses

ANTH 428 FEMINIST SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY STUDIES (fulfills undergraduate elective requirement)

Instructor: Ballestero, Andrea	T 2:30 p.m. – 5:00 p.m.
This course will survey the field of Social Studies of Science and Technology (STS) emphasizing the contributions made by feminist and queer scholarship. It will combine foundational theoretical works with contemporary ethnographies.

EDUC 304 RACE, CLASS, GENDER IN EDUCATION (fulfills undergraduate critical race requirement)

Instructor: Crear, Shelah F.	W 6:00 p.m. – 9:00 p.m.
This course examines the complex ways in which race, ethnicity, gender, and class intersect and influence the educational experience of students in American schools. By employing an interdisciplinary approach centered both on individuals' lived experiences and educational system as a whole; EDUC 304 explores and critiques these critical issues and their impact on student learning. Likely topics include the historical foundations of race, class and gender in education, segregation, Title IX, and other contemporary topics.

FREN 414 SEX & RACE IN THE FRENCH ATLANTIC Distribution Group: I (fulfills undergraduate non-Western requirement)

Instructor: Couti, Jacqueline	MW 4:00 p.m. – 5:15 p.m.
This course examines the carnal violence and brutality associated with sex, gender, and race in folktales and fairy tales in French from the Americas. In so doing, this course will also put European and African folklore in conversation with the New World's oral traditions. Recommended Prerequisite(s): Completion of one 300-level course.

FWIS 127 FEMINIST FABULATIONS: SF BY WOMEN (fulfills undergraduate elective requirement)

Instructor: Henry, Brittany A.	MWF 10:00 a.m. – 10:50 a.m.
This course offers an introduction to speculative fiction by women. Through our readings, we will examine how women writers have employed SF to think imaginatively about the feminist concerns of issues ranging from gender roles, sexual identity, and reproductive rights to technological development, climate change, economic exploitation, and racial justice.
